RESTORING NATIONAL INTEGRATION

National Integration is the feeling of togetherness or oneness towards one's own country irrespective of their individual differences with regard to religion, region, race, culture or caste. It has its own power and radiates power to those who wish to preserve it. India, being such a vast country and having such a diverse culture like no other country in the world, has shown what national integration can actually do. National Integration, as we all know, has played a vital role in gaining the precious independence for India. This term brings to mind, great leaders like Mahatma Gandhi, Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose and many freedom fighters like Chandra Shekhar Azad and Bhagat Singh, who fought selflessly to bring India; then divided by the British; together, which led to our independence.

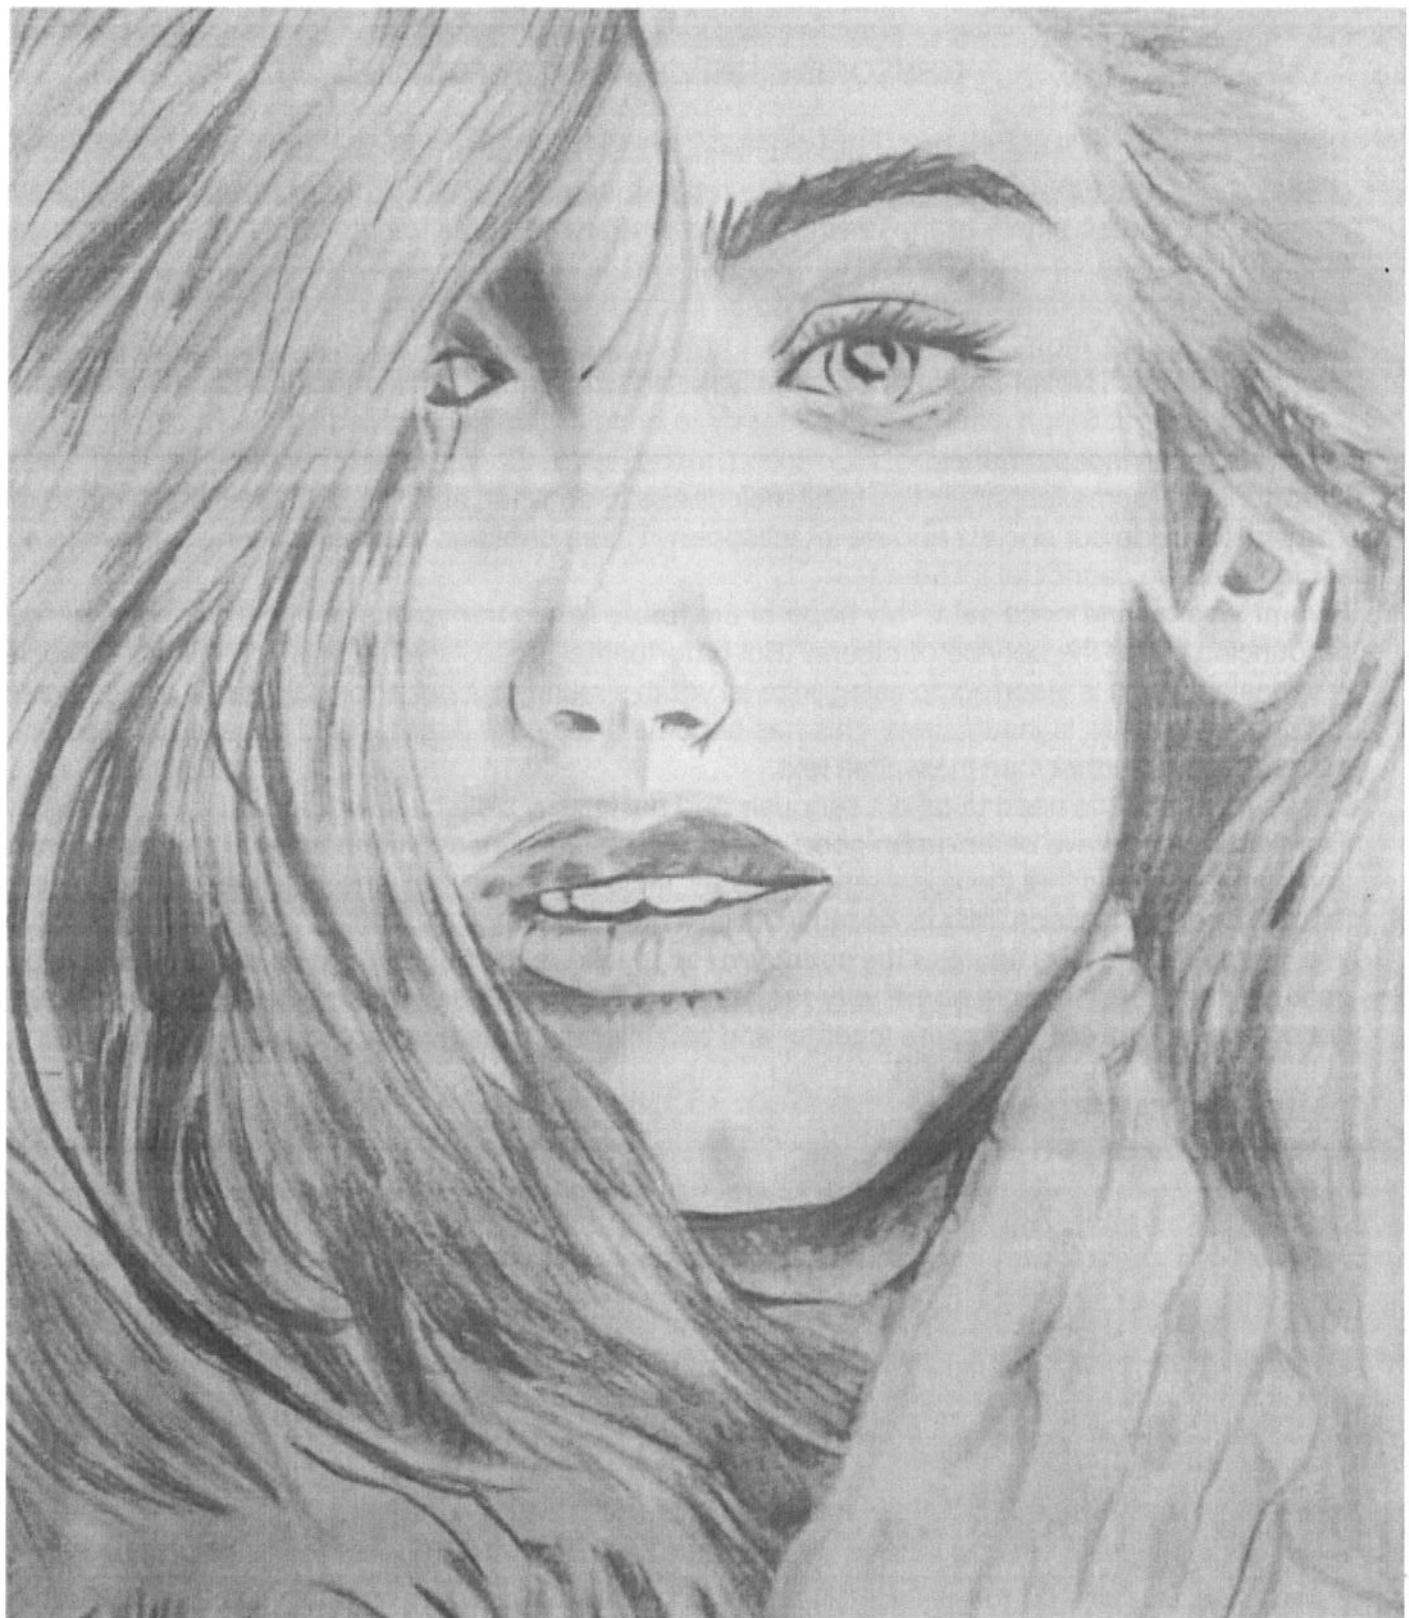

Unfortunately, some leaders today fulfill their desire to do what, at some time, the British did to us. They try to divide our society and we let it happen. These divisions are like cancer or tumors to our society, and we cannot let it spread.

Swami Vivekanand once said, "My hope of the future lies in the youths of character, intelligence, renouncing all for the service of others." But unfortunately today's youth are forgetting their social responsibilities. It is incorrect to categorize all youth similarly but our effort to restore and preserve national integration is insufficient. This has become a topic for debates and essays and does not materialize any further than the written text.

We as ideal citizens need to take it seriously and not let any selfish individual destroy our integrity. The fight must always be between good and bad, truth and lies and not between castes, religions and states. It is said that there is strength in unity. India has faced the consequences of division and learnt numerous lessons from it; we must not let it happen again.

We, youngsters, as the future of the country, need to take responsibility to restore and preserve our national integrity. We have come very far, amongst the developed countries and we can do a lot better when all the cultures come together and become one strong, united country.

WORD TIPS

Changing AutoComplete Words

by Allen Wyatt (last updated May 24, 2014)

Steven was having a problem with AutoComplete. It seems that his company name changed, and that AutoComplete was still suggesting his old company name as he typed, rather than his new one. Based on how the AutoComplete feature works (see the previous tip), it can be safely assumed that the company names (old and new) must share at least the same first four letters. To correct this situation, all you need to do is remember that AutoComplete works hand-in-hand with Word's AutoText feature. If you want to change the word being suggested by AutoComplete, all you need to do is change the entries stored in AutoText. Follow these steps:

1. Choose AutoText from the Insert menu and then choose AutoText from the submenu. Alternately, you can choose AutoCorrect from the Tools menu and then click on the AutoText tab. Either way, Word displays the AutoText tab of the AutoCorrect dialog box. (See Figure 1.)

2. In the list of AutoText entries, locate and select the old company name. (If the old company name is not visible, then use the Look In drop-down list to specify different templates in which the AutoText entry could be located.)
3. Click on Delete. The old company name is deleted.
4. In the Enter AutoText Entries Here box, enter the new company name.
5. Click on Add.
6. Close the AutoCorrect dialog box.

If you want more than just the company name set up as an AutoText entry—for instance, you want to include a larger block of text, including things like a company slogan or address—then you will follow steps that a bit different. Follow these steps after you complete step 3, above.

1. In your document, type the text you want to use in the AutoText entry. For instance, type the company name along with its slogan or address.
2. Select the text.

4. In the dialog box, enter the mnemonic you want used for this AutoText entry.
5. Click on OK. The AutoText entry is completed.

TURNING OFF AUTOCOMPLETE FOR DATES

by Allen Wyatt (last updated May 24, 2014)

Liz asked if there was a way to turn off AutoComplete for dates, but leave the rest of AutoComplete available for use with her many AutoText entries.

Unfortunately, there is no way to do this—it is an all-or-nothing proposition with AutoComplete. If you turn it off (Insert | AutoText | AutoText | Show AutoComplete Suggestions), you won't see the "hints" for AutoText. However, just because you turn AutoComplete off doesn't mean you cannot access your AutoText. If you know the starting few characters of an AutoText entry, all you need to do is type the first few letters and then press F3. Word springs into action and expands the AutoText entry the same as if you had used AutoComplete to expand it.

EXCEL TIPS

Deleting a Chart

by Allen Wyatt (last updated May 17, 2014)

Please Note: This article is written for users of the following Microsoft Excel versions: 97, 2000, 2002, and 2003. If you are using a later version (Excel 2007 or later), this tip may not work for you. For a version of this tip written specifically for later versions of Excel, click here: Deleting a Chart.

Excel allows you to create all sorts of charts based on the data in a worksheet table. These charts can either be on their own sheets or they can be embedded within a regular worksheet. At some point you may have a need to delete a chart. To delete an embedded chart, all you need to do is select it (so that handles appear around the perimeter of the chart object) and then press the Delete key. If you need to delete a chart sheet, you do so in the same manner as when you delete a regular worksheet:

1. Display the chart sheet.
2. Choose Delete Sheet from the Edit menu. Excel asks if you are sure you want to delete the sheet.
3. Click on OK. The chart sheet is deleted.
